

Laboratory Technician Position at Cancer Heterogeneity Lab

The Cancer heterogeneity lab is recruiting a technician (Técnico Laboratorio Medio) to work on a project to develop humanized antibodies that target signaling molecules in cancer.

Candidates should have demonstrated experience in molecular biology and the use of cell-based assays and a strong interest in translational cancer research.

This position is funded for up to 2 years, starting January 3rd, 2022.

Application procedure:

Candidates should submit their applications before date, and include their CV, a cover letter, and the details of at least 2 people who can provide a reference using the following form and indicating 42101 as reference.

